16 February 2023

Market Commentary / Recent Trades

Iron ore price steadied on Thursday amid stable trading activity and optimism on more government policy to expand spending. Moreover, banks and rating agencies have revised their forecasts for China's GDP in 2023 from the recovery in consumption. In terms of steel demand, finished 128.00 steel inventories rose for the eighth consecutive week by 1% during 9-15 Feb, although the growth rate is slower than the same period of last year. Accordingly, iron ore consumption and steel production were flat for the week ending 15 Feb. In the futures market, Feb traded in a 50-cent range between $124.5 - $125. March moved up from $123.45 to $124.90 in the Asian afternoon before coming off the high to $124.7 and stayed sideway. Feb/Mar narrowed from $0.8 at the open to $0.3 and par into London morning.
