Market Commentary / Recent Trades

Iron ore prices stayed rangebound on Wednesday as recent mixed signals have left investors pondering future market movements. Market sources reported that more Chinese steel mills plan to lower their production followed by the government guidance of capping annual output to the last year's level. Some steelmakers in the East region are looking at cutting 20-30% of their output for the rest of the year according to Mysteel source. In the futures market, prompt months contracts opened a touch lower but gradually returned to last night's closing. Sept edged lower to $100.50 but closed at sub$101. Oct inched up from $98.50 to $98.95. On the spreads side, Sept/Oct traded at $1.95 and then $2 in the clips of 20-40kt; Q2/Q3 saw small size trading at $2.25.
