Market Commentary / Recent Trades

Iron ore pulled back on Monday following a warning from the regulator National Development and Reform Commission against price speculation. However, demand is expected to remain strong due to restocking activities leading up to the Chinese New Year and ongoing property stimulus. The futures market witnessed a very quiet session, with Dec trading in small sizes within a 50 cents range, reaching up to $133. Jan opened lower but saw a slight uptick in the rest of the session, closing at around $131.2. Some activity was observed in spreads, with Dec/Jan trading at $1.45 in 50kt, and Jan/Mar fluctuating between $3.7 and $3.6.
