Market Commentary / Recent Trades

Iron ore opened at $131.45 this morning in Singapore, moving into session highs of $132.30 right before the close at $132. Later on in the day, we saw a gradual climb through the afternoon session, closing on session highs of $132.80. We saw Q1 and Jan/Feb interest in the market today, trading in decent sizes. Notably, there were multiple Dec/Jan trades in decent sizes from the T+1 session on Friday, widening from $1.90 to $2.05 as traded today. Mills in China have started to hold conservative outlooks for iron ore in the coming two months because of poor margins and a sluggish demand market.
