Market Commentary / Recent Trades

The Singapore morning session opened at $96.85, climbing to a high of $96.95 before dropping to a low of $96.20 and closing at $96.70. Outrights saw limited activity during the session, with most of the trading concentrated in prompt months in sizes ranging from 10–40kt, except for an August trade at 60kt. Some liquidity was also observed further down the curve, with Q4 and Q1-26 trading in smalls.

Spreads saw minimal activity, with only two spreads trading: Aug/Sep at $0.20 in 5kt, and further down the curve, Q1-26/Q4-26 at $3.80 in 5kt.

The DCE iron ore Sep contract has broken through the first resistance level, suggesting potential for a rebound in the coming sessions. Meanwhile, Vale has cut its 2025 pellet production target from 38–42 million tons to 31–35 million tons, while targets for fines and concentrates remain unchanged.
