• The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that it will not release the October non-farm payroll report and stated that the employment data originally scheduled for October will be merged into the November report for publication. This combined report is scheduled to be released on December 16, meaning that Federal Reserve officials will not have access to this critical data during their final policy meeting of the year on December 11.

Iron Ore Key Indicators:

• Platts62 105.10, -0.10 MTD $104.14. However, overall shipment volumes remain elevated. While a sharp decline in iron ore prices appears unlikely in the near term, pressure is expected to gradually build as downstream steel demand weakens.
